A Renaissance

For
The Spindle City

Wide World Photos

Lowell's historic past and the significant remainders of its past which exist today has captured the interest of the state and federal governments both of whom have taken action towards preserving and displaying this city's earlier years. The state has already begun preserving and beautifying lands around surrounding major historical sites such as the Francis Gate.

On June 5, 1978, President Carter signed the Lowell National Historic Park Bill which allows the appropriation of funds for establishing and operating a national park in Lowell. It will be the first park of its kind in the country.

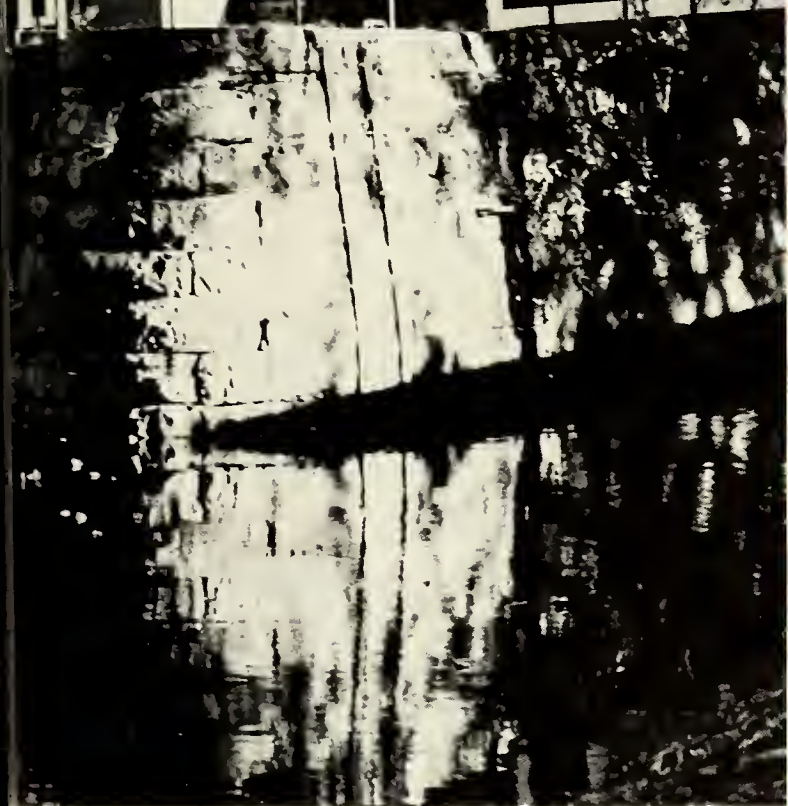

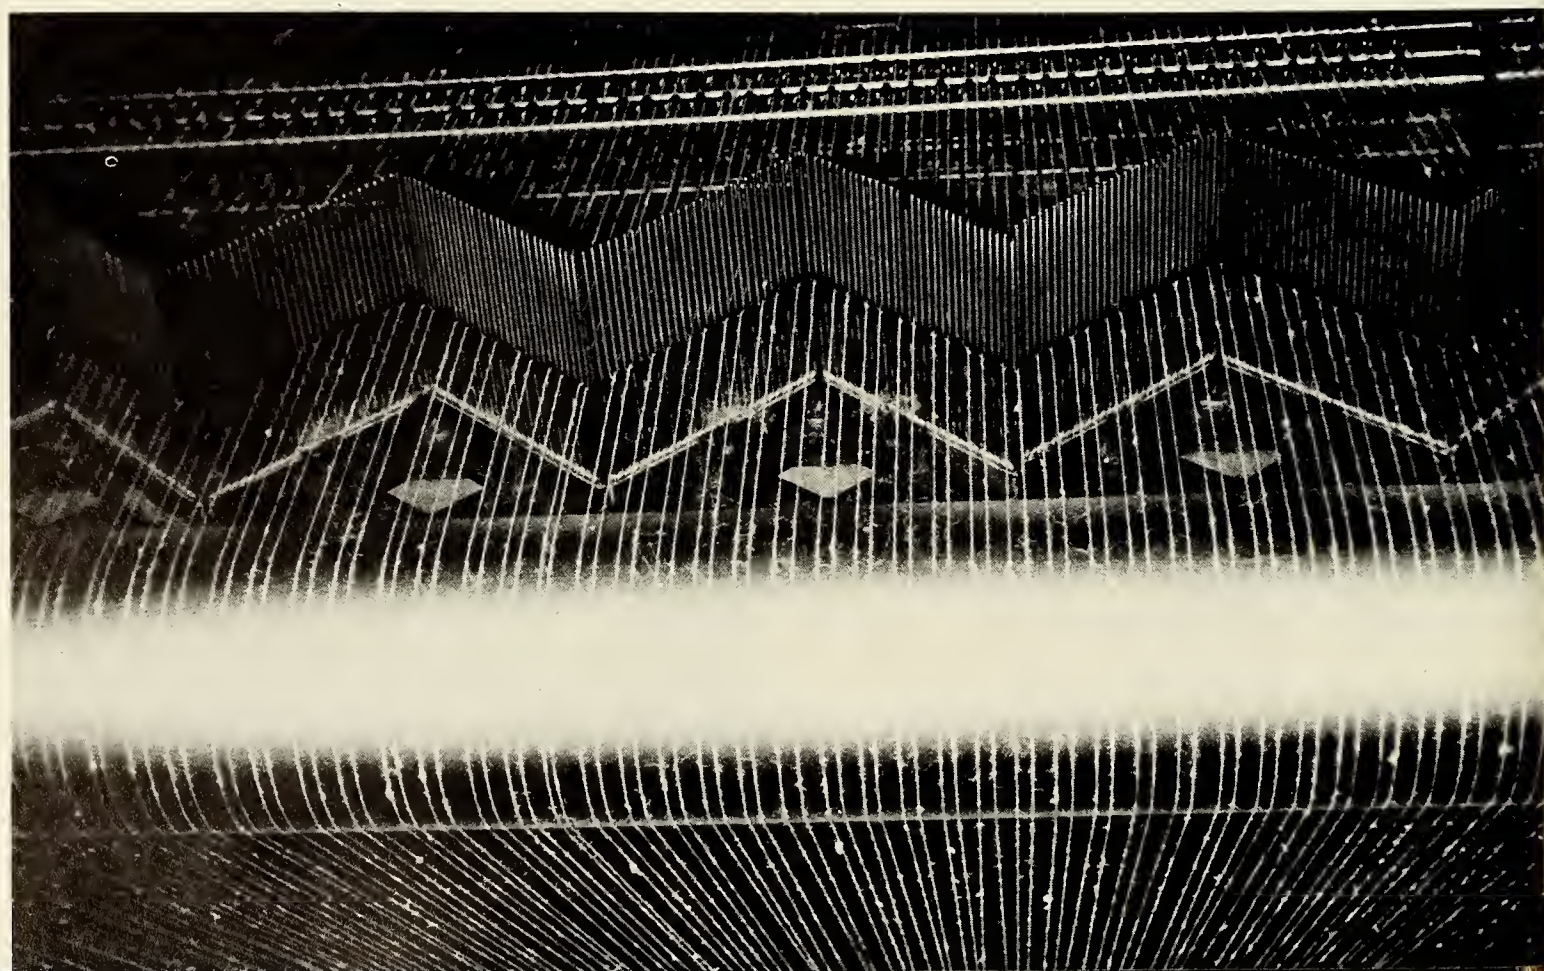

Many of the historic sites in Lowell lie along the 5.6 mile power canal system which was built between 1822 and 1848. The canal system with its ancient gatehouses and walkways is in remarkably good repair today and is one major asset which makes Lowell very unique. Owned by one of the nation's oldest operating corporations, The Proprietors of Locks and Canals (1792), the canal system is still used to turn hydroelectric turbines around the city today. There is no existing water power system like it anywhere.

Len Keshishian

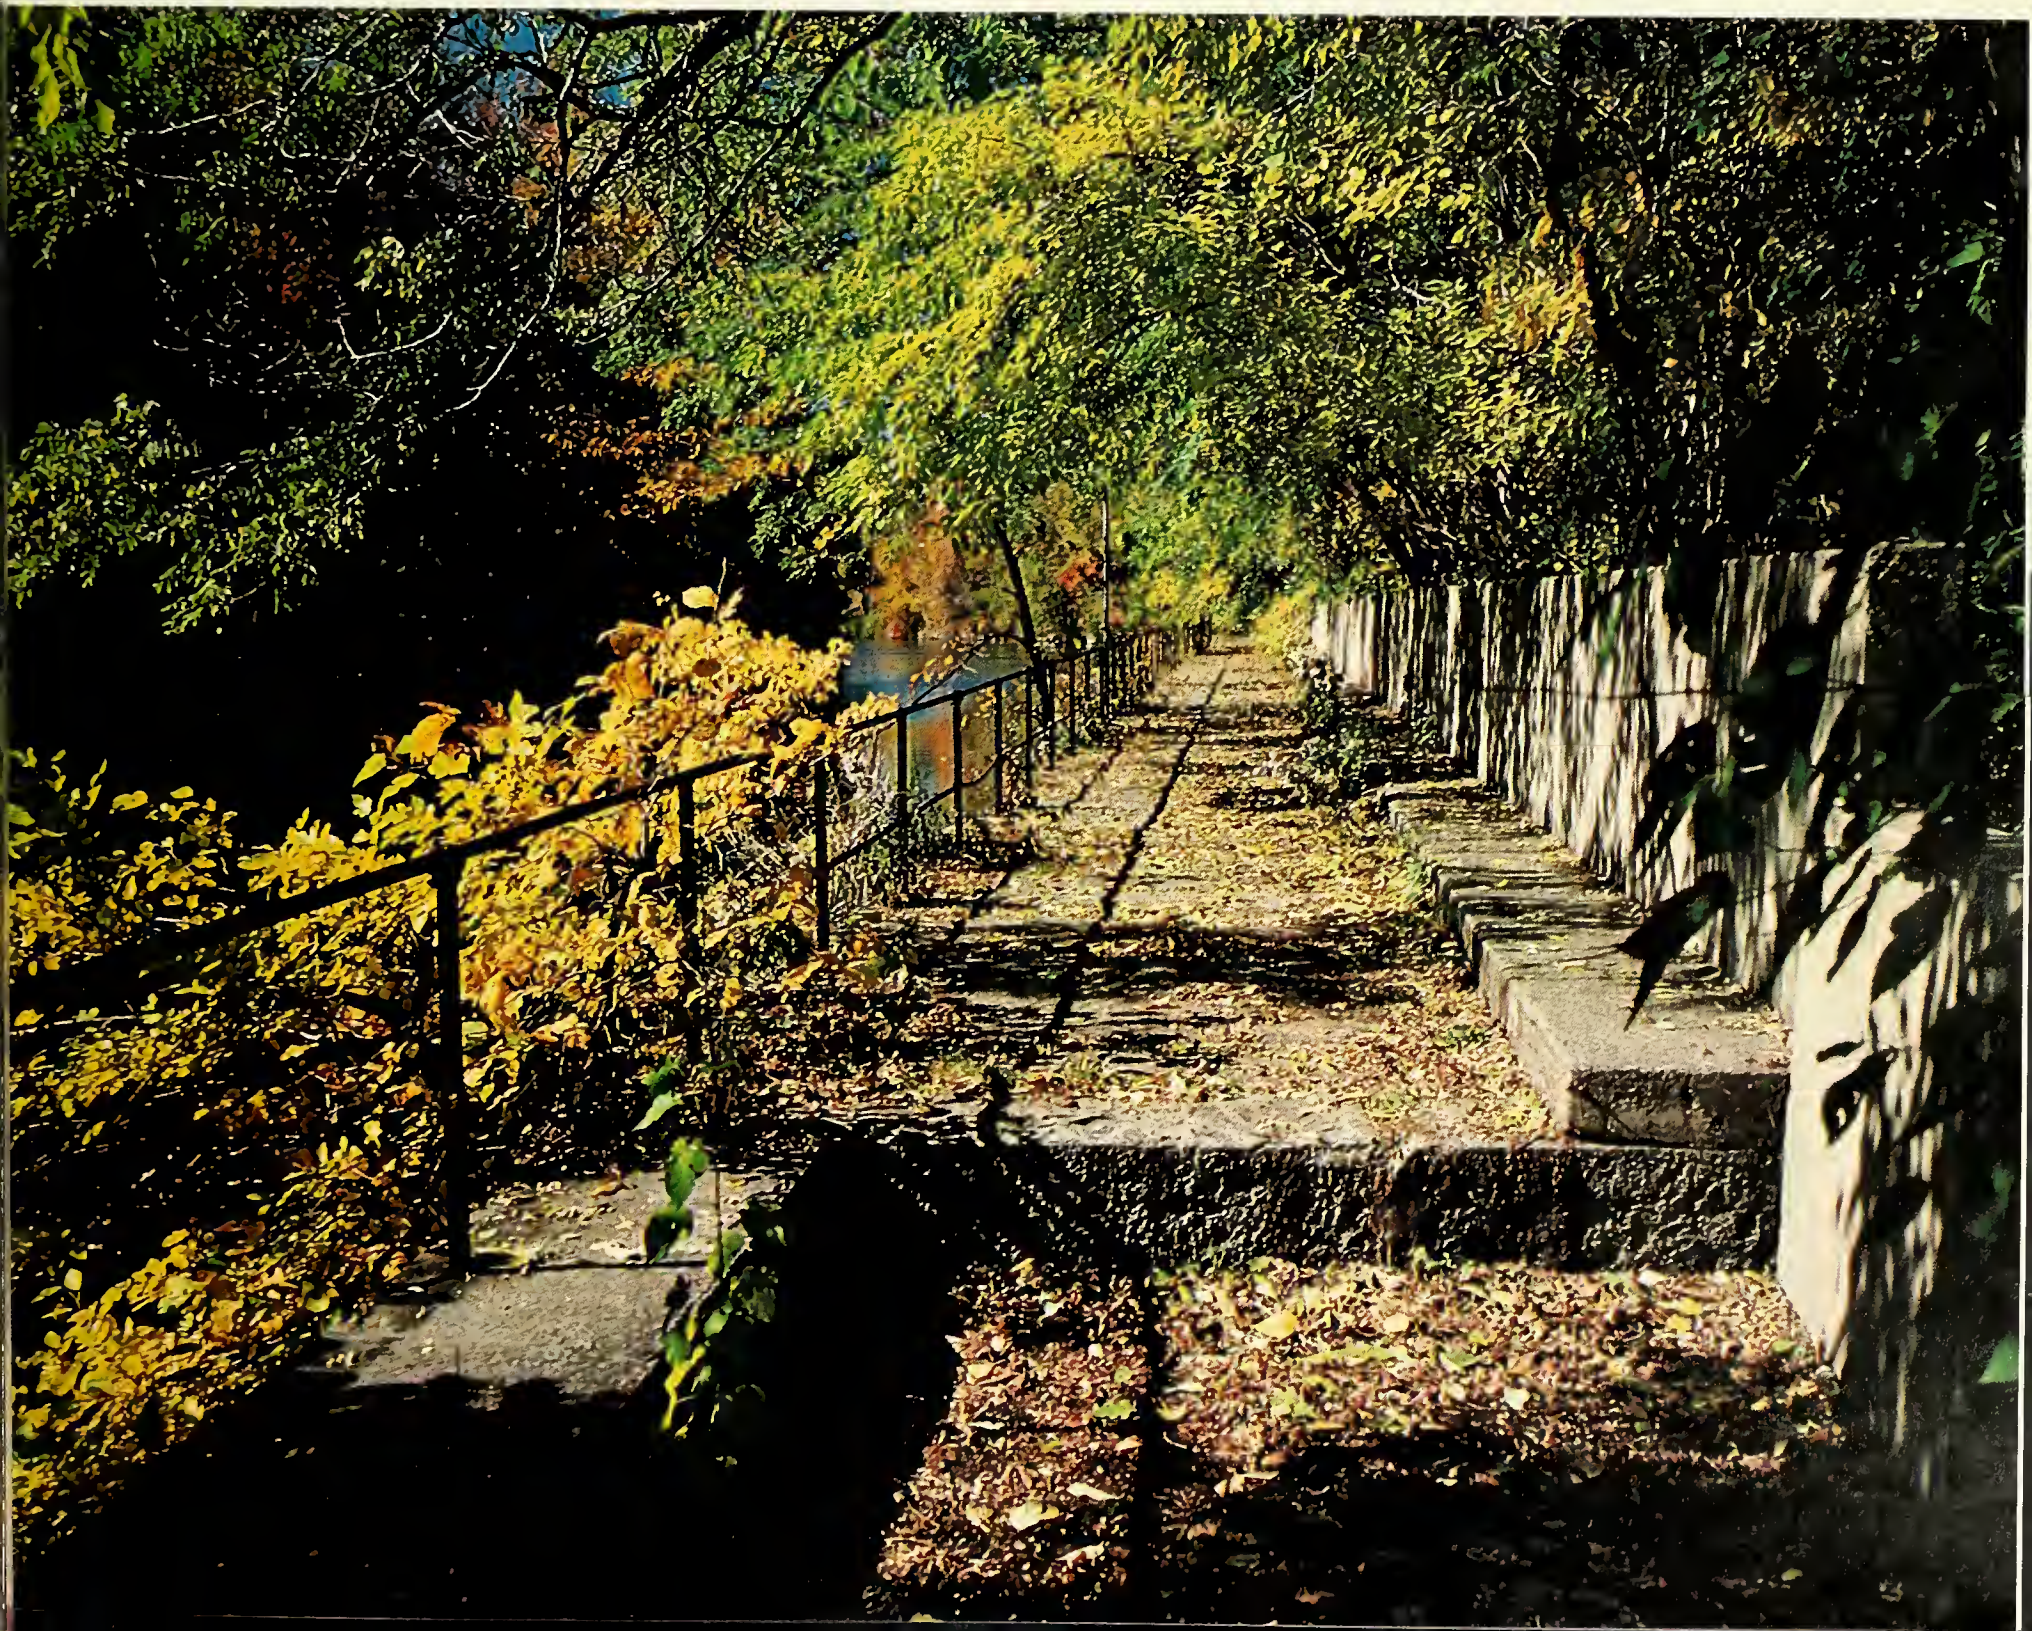

"The principal manufacturing town in the United States is that of Lowell . . . as regards the amount of capital invested for manufacturing purposes, the extent of the business, and the spirited manner in which it is conducted. And here, too, the factory system is perhaps in more perfect operation than in any other part of the United States . . . and it may, without fear of contradiction, be asserted that the factories at Lowell produce a greater quantity of yarn and cloth from each spindle and loom (in a given time) than is produced in any other factory without exception in the world . . ."
— A British authority, 1839

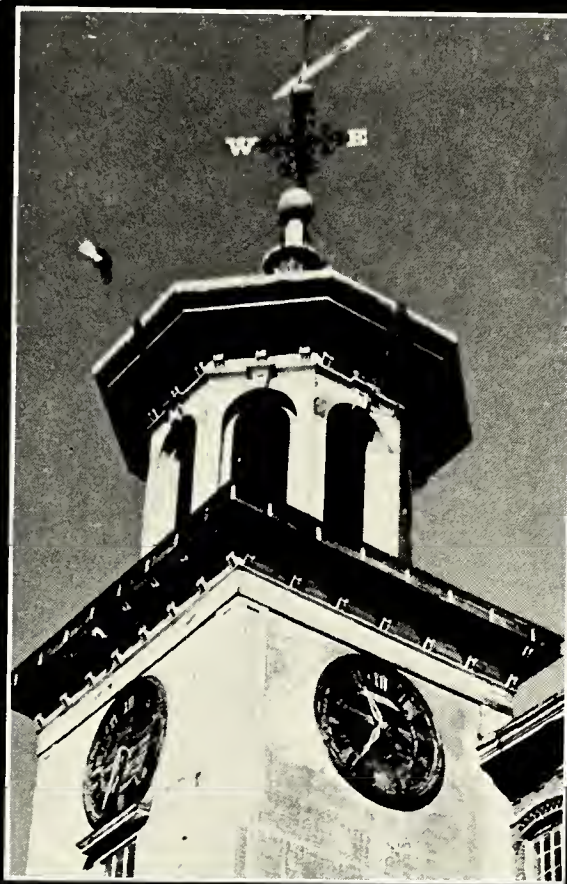

A National Park in Lowell?

Fortunately, Lowell isn't the beautiful, modernized city we would like it to be because too often urban renewal and modernization projects have given cities facelifts while at the same time destroying important remnants of their past. Lowell is like the attic in an old house. The trapdoor leading to it has just been opened and while at first it may not look impressive, there are a lot of relics packed with history waiting to be undusted and displayed.

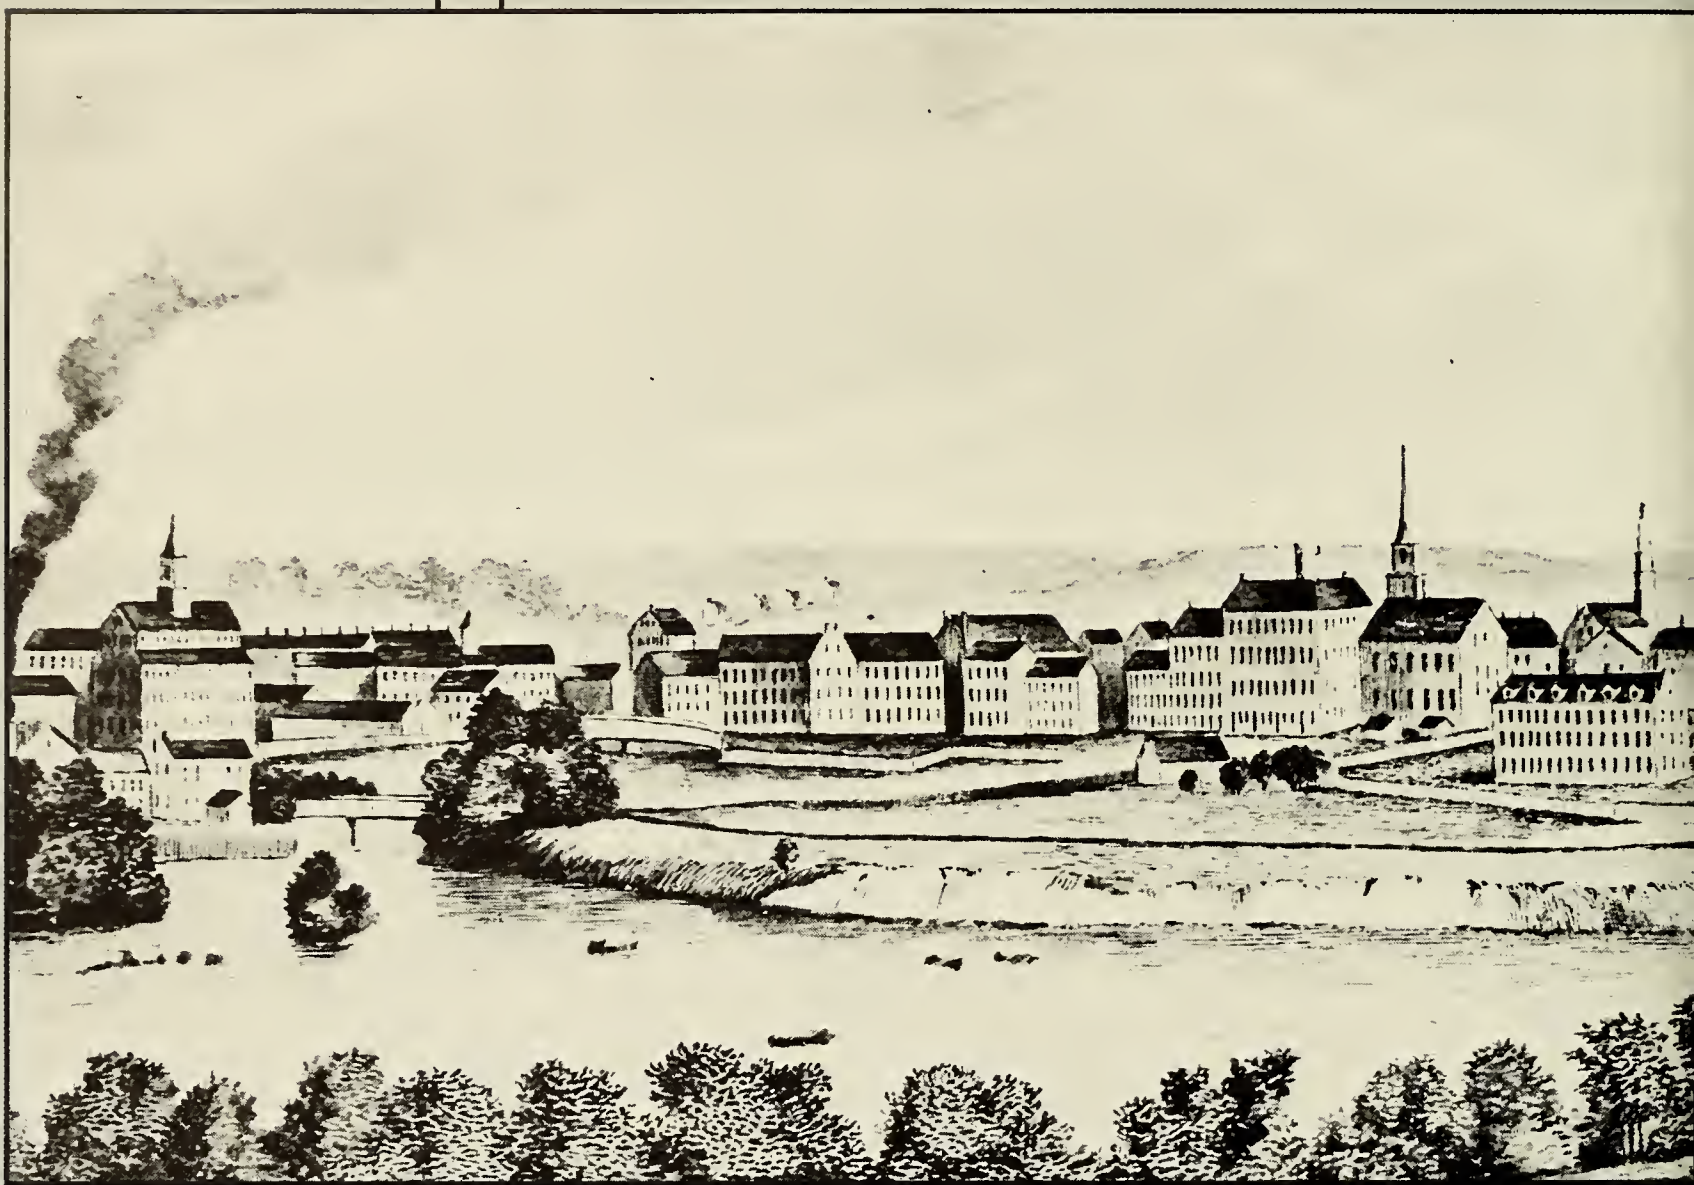

Today the network of waterways which once gave Lowell the nickname "Venice of America" remain intact. The clock-towers which have stood silently over millyards for too many decades are ready to keep time again in a city which has turned back the hands of time in search of a brighter future. With the coming of the state and national parks, this city will begin to resemble the famed industrial milltown Lowell once was. Old but strong textile machinery with its once marveled water power systems may once again weave cloth from puffy mounds of cotton within the walls of those sturdy red brick fortresses we call mills. The state has already purchased historic properties throughout the city for restoration and the National Park may encompass the entire power canal system along with some large mill properties. It is possible that future visitors of the Lowell Park will travel between historic sites using a water transportation system on the canals and parts of the Merrimack River.

Big plans are being made for Lowell; not only because of the mills and canal system but because Lowell's history is very unique and important. It all started just south of the New Hampshire Border where the Merrimack River discontinues its easy peaceful flow and suddenly drops 32 feet downward across the Pawtucket falls. In the 1820's men saw this 32 foot drop and dreamed of all the water wheels that could be turned and how the Merrimack might as a result turn East Chelmsford, a farming community, into a new town of textile mills and boarding houses. Their dream became Lowell, Massachusetts — this country's first planned industrial town. In Lowell, industry was planned with the lives of the workers in mind as well as textile production and this made for an ideal industrial setting which was copied elsewhere. The original buildings were well ventilated, uncrowded, spaced apart structures surrounded by waterways and greenery. The water power was cheap, endless, and best of all nonpolluting. The employees lived in company owned boardinghouses within walking distance of the mills. Many people thought that in early Lowell a utopian society had almost been achieved and although things changed for the worse in later years early Lowell was a city to be proud of. With the Lowell Park being established, Lowell and its sense of pride will be restored. The years ahead may represent another turning point in Lowell's history, a turn into the past and a renaissance for the Spindle City.

“Lowell in the years before 1860 was synonymous with innovation. The practices adopted by the Lowell mills came to be followed by virtually all of the other textile mills in northern New England. Manufacturers looked to Lowell for new machinery, new styles of cloth, and even for new policies concerning the workforce. What was adopted in Lowell was practiced throughout New England and came to be called the LOWELL System”

Hot Dog-Hamburger-Shiskabob Days

It is a common sight to see a group or club, selling Hot dogs, Hamburgers and sometimes even Shihkabob for $1.00 or less. You can almost always expect to meet and see old friends in front of Cumnock Hall usually gorging themselves with food.

Along with the frustrations of coming back to school come the problems. This school year's problems opened with one that affected some 200 students. Due to a lack of Dorm space these students were forced to find other places of dwelling. Although the waiting lists were lengthy many students could not "wait it out" and found other places of habitat. Some not so elaborate!!!

Herb Graff and his BLOOPERS 9/18/78

The scene is a western saloon. Slowly the victim crumbles to the floor. A saloon girl stoops next to the fallen cowboy, with horror in her eyes she looks up to the killer sadly and says, "Why, he didn't even get a chance to draw his Monkey Wrench."

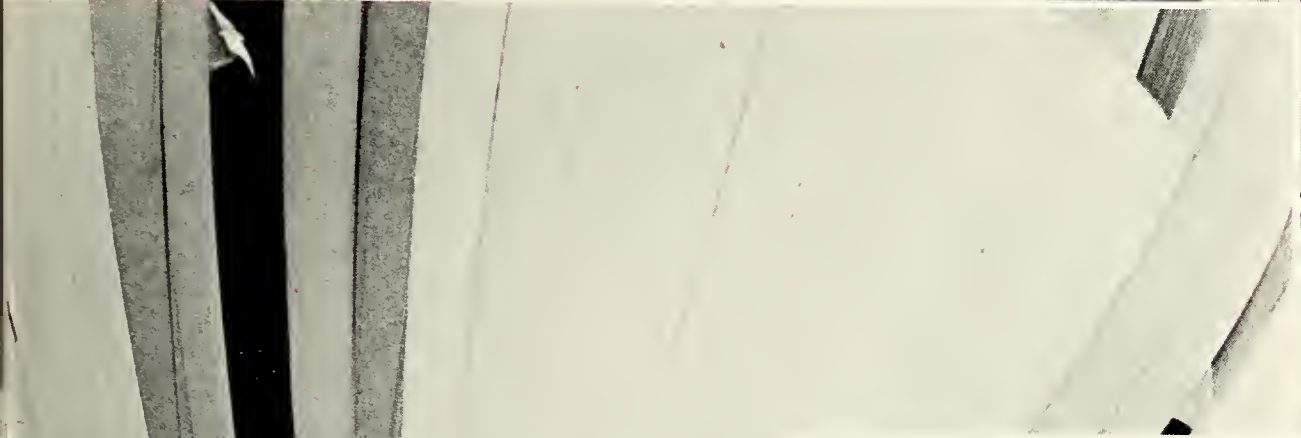

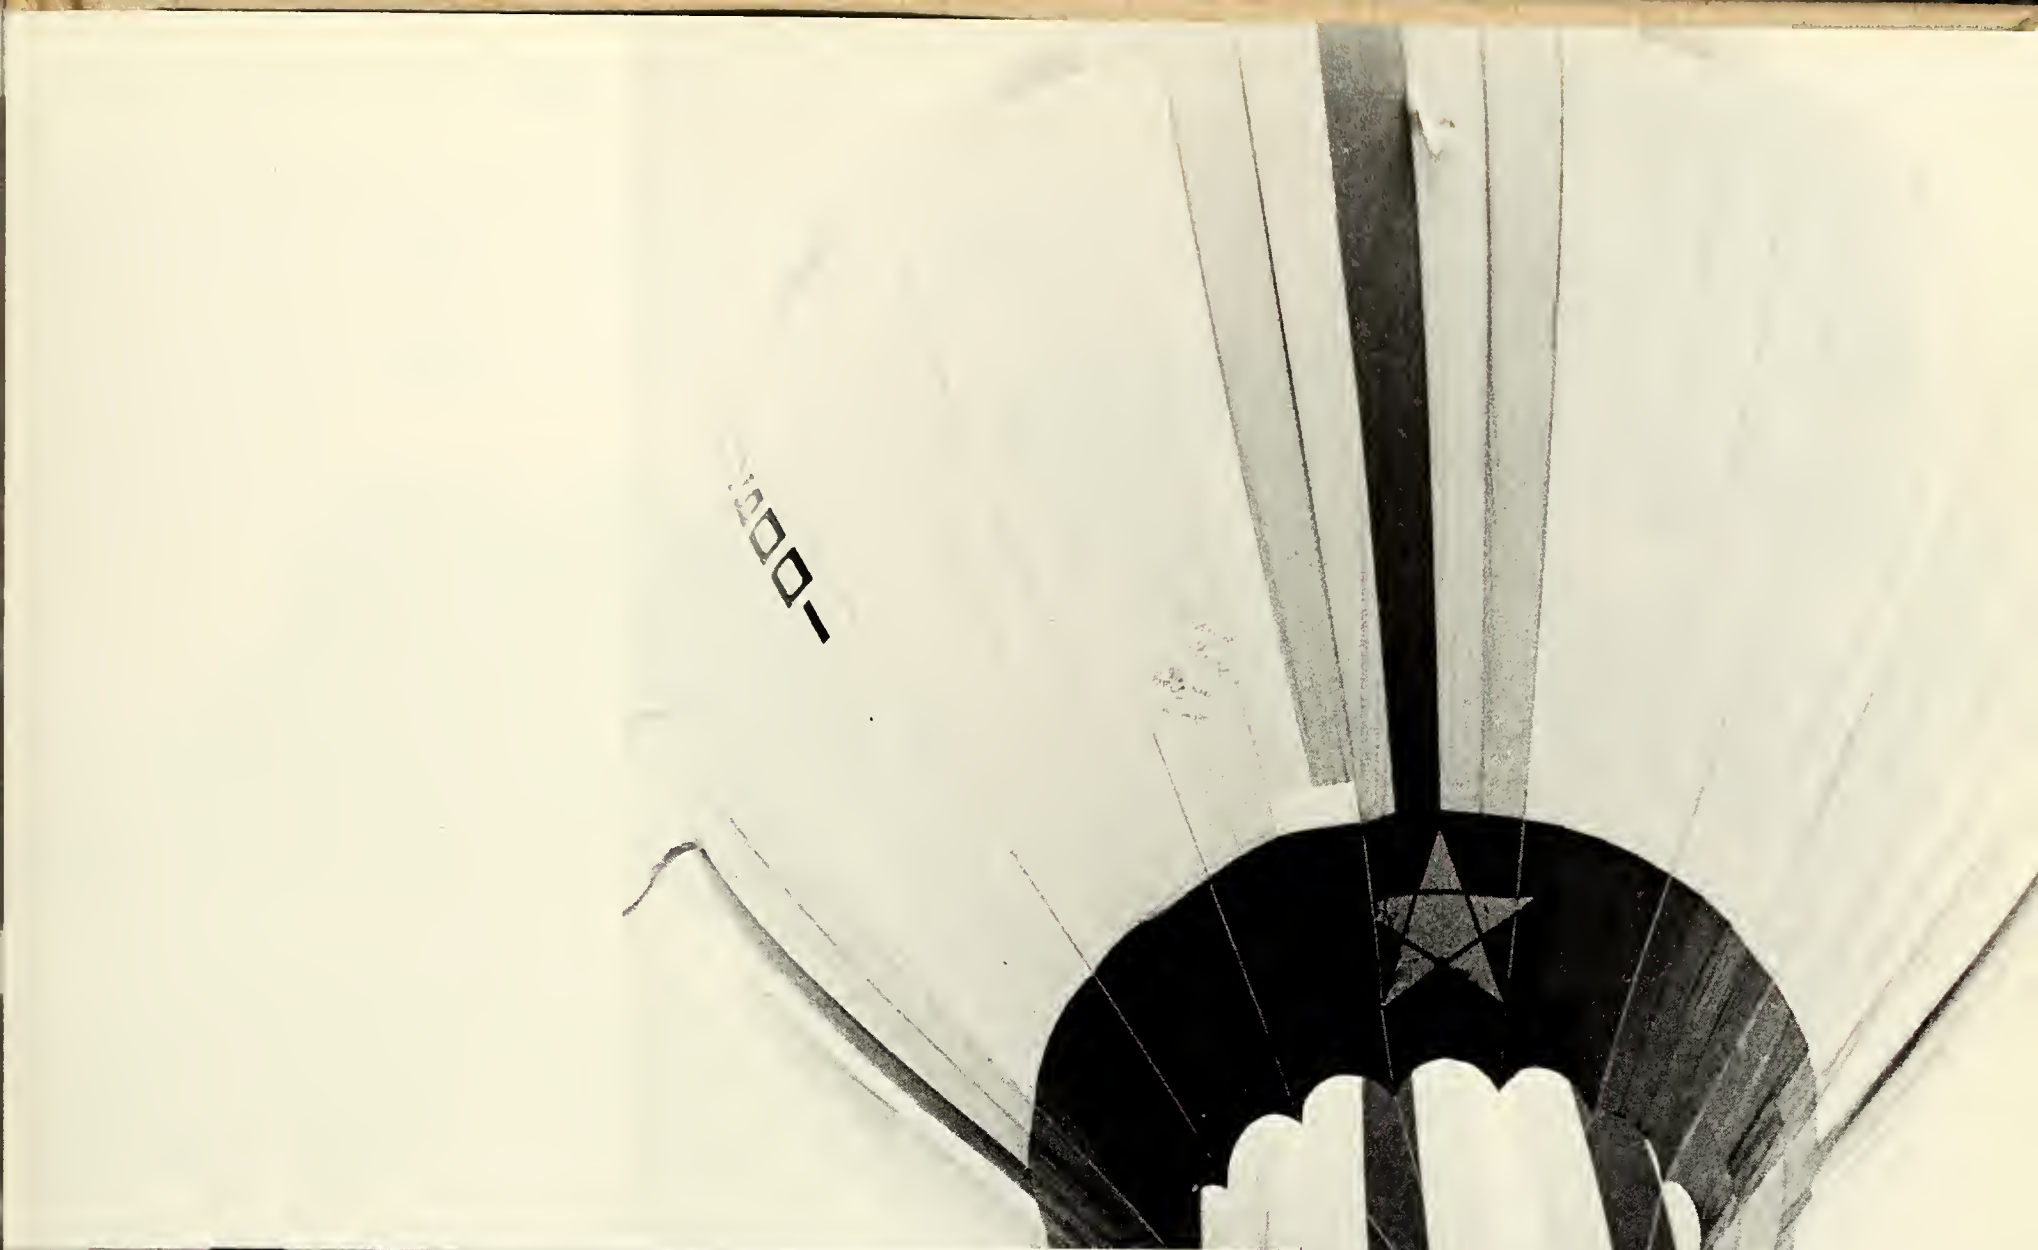

Captain Kirk orders Scotty to prepare a landing party to beam down. Scotty appears behind Kirk and says, "But captain, isn't that against your environmental protection?"

These were just two of the many bloopers shown by Herb Graff, an adjunct professor of film at N.Y.U. Herb Graff's interjection of anecdotes and wit between film clips provided for an unusually funny and entertaining evening.

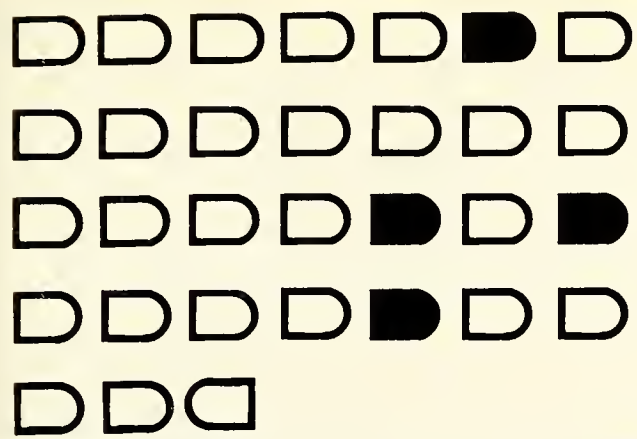

"This is Harry Reasoner reporting from Los Angeles the Hippy capital of the world. We are not wearing any flowers though." In the background a bearded man with Gym shorts gets up off the grass, takes off his shorts and jumps up and down with his hands raised.

October

This semester wars on campus between fraternities have reached epidemic proportions. Numerous inter-fraternity incidents have been reported, including stealing, house painting, and acts of physical violence.

The activities have been attributed to Animal House, a recent movie about a radical fraternity in the early 1960's. Evidently, the University is not the only school affected by the movie. All fraternities and sororities in the state of Pennsylvania have been suspended. Northeastern Frats are going down one by one because of pressure from townspeople. Other fraternity related problems are occurring throughout the country.

Dean King, in a meeting with all the fraternities and sororities told them that they had better calm down. He stated "Unless the Greeks clean up their act between now and next semester I will ask the Board of Trustees to recind all Greeks." He went to say "I have had it when it comes to fending off local officials, townspeople . . . I'm not going to put up with it any longer." It seems that the residents around the fraternity houses have been complaining to local authorities, who in turn complain to the Dean.

Art Buchwald, renowned satirist and syndicated columnist in over 500 newspapers, came to a sellout crowd in Cumnock Hall armed with his arsenal of quips about Washington and the world.

He spoke on his views on the important subjects of the day in Washington. He has a lot of respect for President Carter and worships "the very quicksand he walks in."

As for the Arab oil embargo, Buchwald blames the whole thing on the Harvard Business School, because if the sons of the Arab sheiks had gone to U.S.C., oil would be $3.00 a barrel because they would have learned how to surf instead of how to "stick it to us."

On Nuclear power, Buchwald is undecided since he lives only 100 miles from Harrisburg. When the wind blows toward Cleveland, he is Pro-nuclear. But when the wind blows toward Washington, he says, "God Bless Jane Fonda!" As for nuclear waste, Buchwald says we should dump it in New Jersey since we dump so much other junk there they wouldn't know the difference.

Buchwald praised America and the system that had lied to us without one bayonet being unsheathed, making America different from almost any other country in the world!

*Spring Carnival
Rescheduled*

As early as Monday, meteorology majors here at ULowell were warning that Friday was going to be a wet Spring Carnival. Rain threatened all day Thursday and a torrential downpour on Friday morning washed away even the most hard-dying hopes for the biggest — for some the only party of the year. “There was no way that the bands could play. They would have been electrocuted. They would have been taking their lives into their own hands.” said social director L. S. S. Efforts to schedule a rain date for Saturday the 28th were blocked by municipal red tape. City officials refused to grant liquor and entertainment licenses for Saturday, and the state refused permission to use the Regatta Field. When the Disconnecter asked him to comment, A. C. Director Frank Flemming stated, “I don’t want to talk about Friday. I’ve taken enough abuse about it already. People seem to be blaming us because it rained! I just hope everything goes all right on the 11th.” Flemming informed the Disconnecter that re-organization efforts over the weekend proved highly successful and that the show will go on this May 11th. “As luck would have it, this show will be even bigger than the one originally planned. We’ve dropped Southside, the Granadi Brothers and the Flaherty’s from the show and replaced them with Bonnie Raitte, Steve Martin and the Greatful Dead. The Security plan is still tight. If it rains I think I’ll kill myself.” All but two of the clubs are planning to build booths, the beer tent will be open to all over 20, and strict security will be enforced. Classes will be held as usual, but attendance is expected to be light. Administrative spokesman Roger Shineass stated that “Attendance is usually light on the last day of classes, and if the students want to party there’s nothing we can do to stop them.”

Spring Carnival 4/27/79

Spring carnival is the big party of all parties which some people start thinking about as early as the first week of Spring Semester. It's the calm before the storm of final exams. The whole weekend represents an island of partying amidst an ocean of academic worries.

An off-campus location and a new law which allowed drinking only in certain tents was threatening the success of the big party but in the end these factors made no difference.

Early Friday morning, April 28, the rain clearly announced its soggy defeat of Spring Carnival. Thousands of hopes that it wouldn't rain had lost to an endless army of raindrops. Yet it seems that bad weather partyers are the most spirited partyers of all. A couple hundred of these enthusiastic all-weather partyers showed up despite an official cancellation and soaked up some beers inside the beer tent while others played frisbee on the spongy wet field in defiance of the persistent downpours.

Everyone in the tent at one time or another must have paused, beer in hand, at its entrance to stare across at the rainy, drenched field, the few remaining collapsed concession stands, and the huge hydraulic stage which was folding itself up like a UFO that had landed - in a place it didn't belong.

I have been given a chance to write something for this year's Sojourn, so what I would like to say is good bye to the Senior Class. I don't know about the rest of the Junior Class, but I'm sure there are many who feel the same way I do.

Next year it will be us who will be writing resumés, getting dressed up for interviews, getting attacks of seniorities, and finally, graduating. As I watch all that you've been going through, I think to myself, I can't wait 'til next year when it'll be our turn! Next year there will be something very important missing, however, and that is the class of 1979 with whom we struggled through our first 3 years of college. Being only one year ahead of us, you were most understanding when, as freshman, we ran blindly about the campus feeling totally lost and confused. We followed right behind you as sophomores as we finally got up the nerve to become involved in school activities, and now, as juniors we are watching as you graduate, ready to go out and face the real world.

The only thing I would like to say is good luck and don't forget about us completely, while we are still here at U Lowell struggling our way through classes and exams to graduation day. Your friendship and guidance has been a major part of our college life and I would like you to know it certainly has been appreciated. Good luck '79 we are going to miss you.

"Before the season started I felt we had the potential to win the ECAC and the NCAA Championships, but in the nature of sports, the better teams don't always prevail. We were blessed with good leadership from Tom Jacobs and John Costello, as well as the other seniors. That leadership, combined with a little bit of luck, helped us to accomplish our potential goal. By winning the nationals, ULowell was given the exposure necessary for a new University, and the enthusiasm generated will be contagious and carry over to other sports and activities at the University."

— Coach Bill Riley

Ed. Note — Jacobs has signed with the Boston Bruins, and Costello with the Montreal Canadiens.

"playing in the National Championship allows us to play against different teams, and introduces us to different styles of hockey . . . After winning it all, we know our style of play is the best"

Brian Doyle

"at the beginning of the year, we weren't playing as a team. I thought if we pull together and play like a team, we'll be great. If we don't, we'll be just a group of hockey players. We all wanted to win the Nationals, and when we started playing as a team I knew we would do it."

John Costello

"Now Lowell will be known for something more than a good academic school."

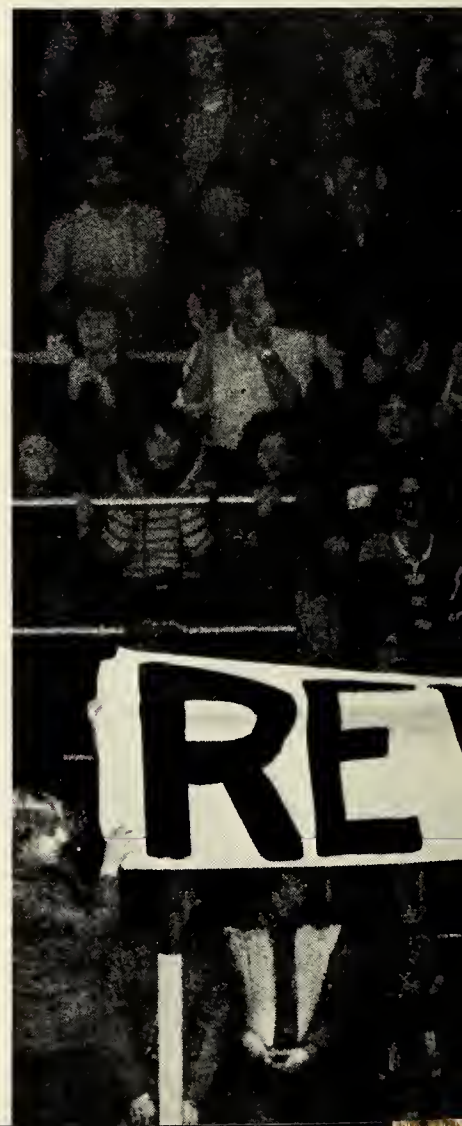

Tom Jacobs

"people always remember the winners. After going unbeaten for games, beating Merrimack twice, and winning the ECAC, plus the NCAA title, we should be remembered."

The 1978-79 Cross Country Season opened with a great win over Brandeis University. Lowell has only beaten Brandeis once before in nine years. We also tied Bates College, another team that Lowell has been unable to defeat in past years.

The 5-1-1 record was the best in New England Division II, and Lowell was selected the Number 1 team in Division II.

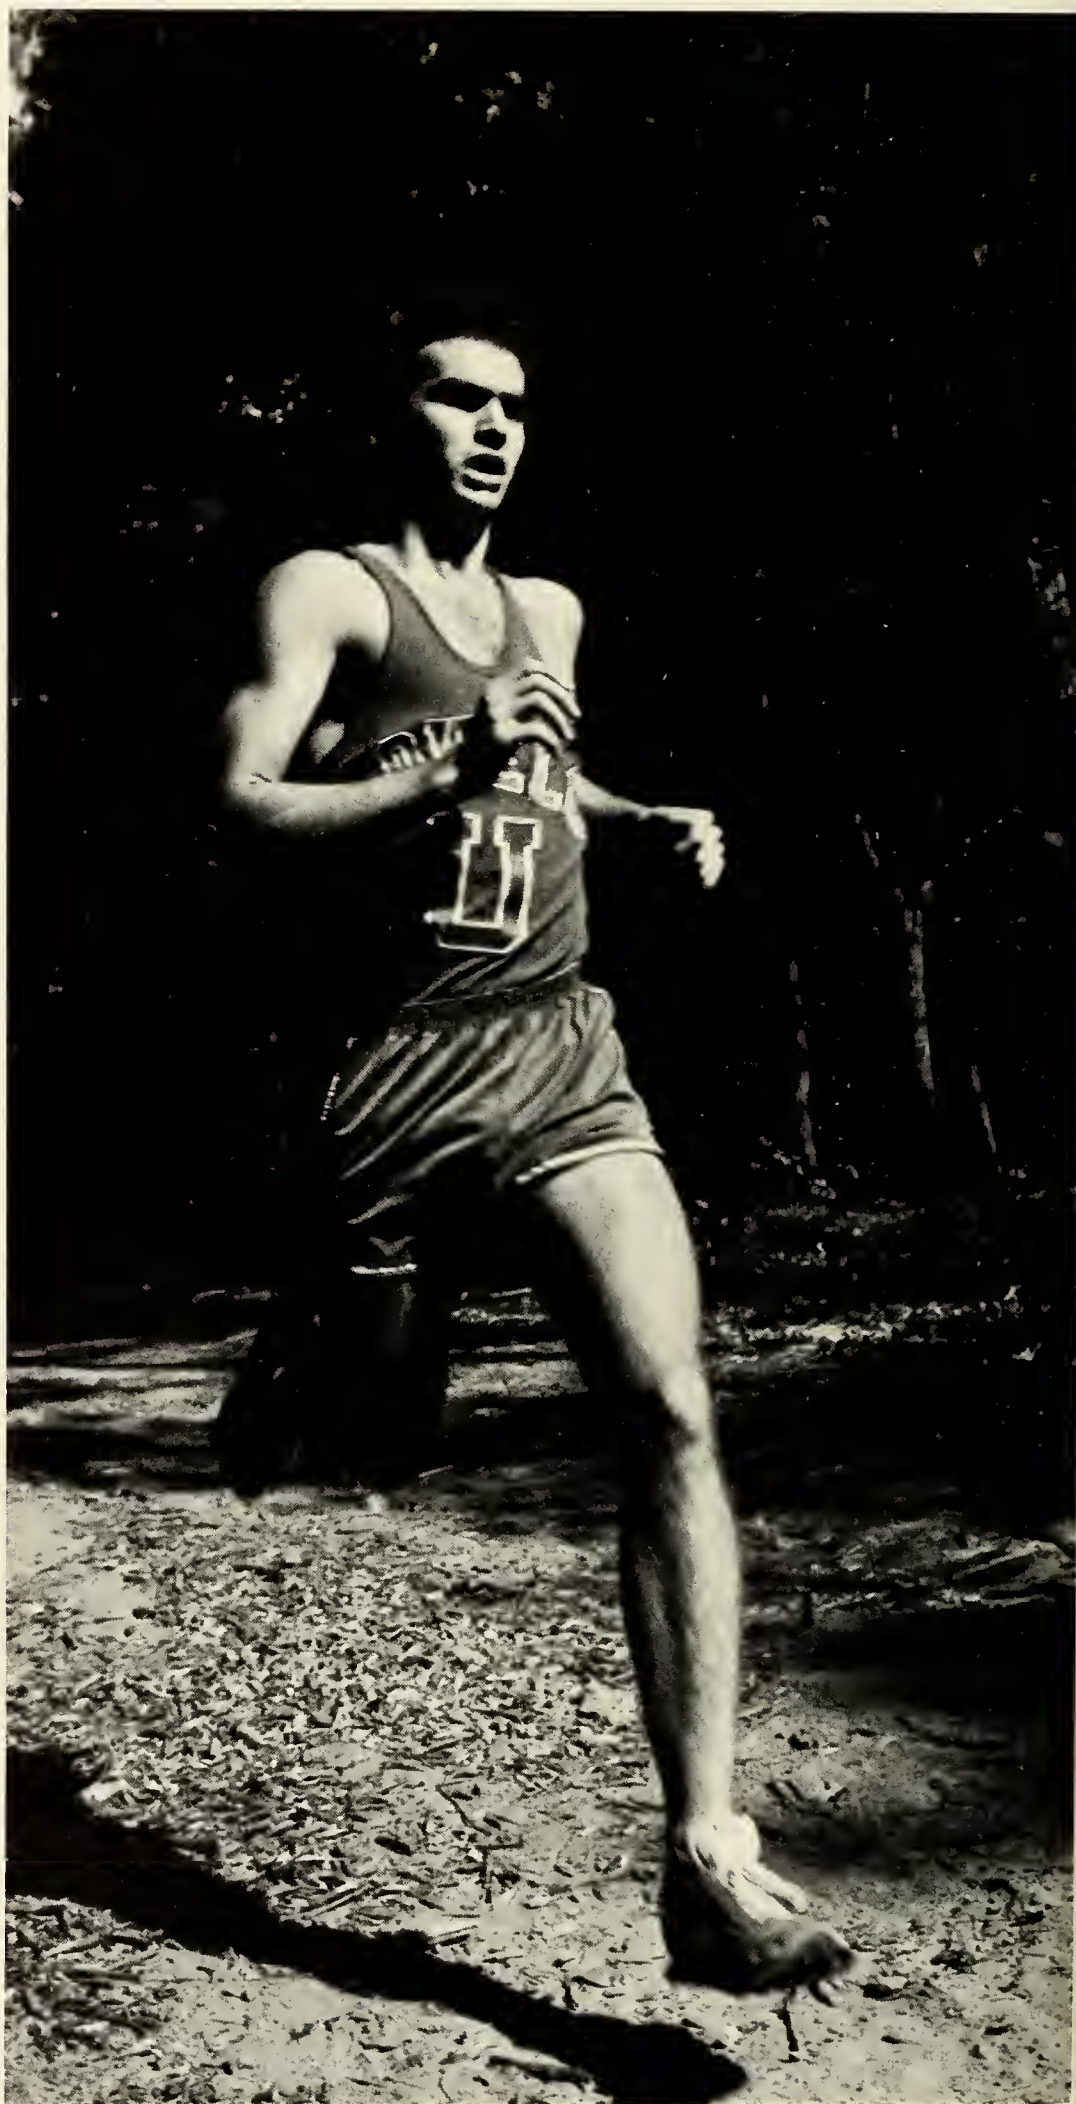

This was the first year for a qualifying race for the NCAA Championship and Lowell had a poor day finishing 12th out of 25 teams. But the Chiefs came back in the Eastern League Championships to finish 4th and the New England Championship finishing 12th in a field of 35 teams.

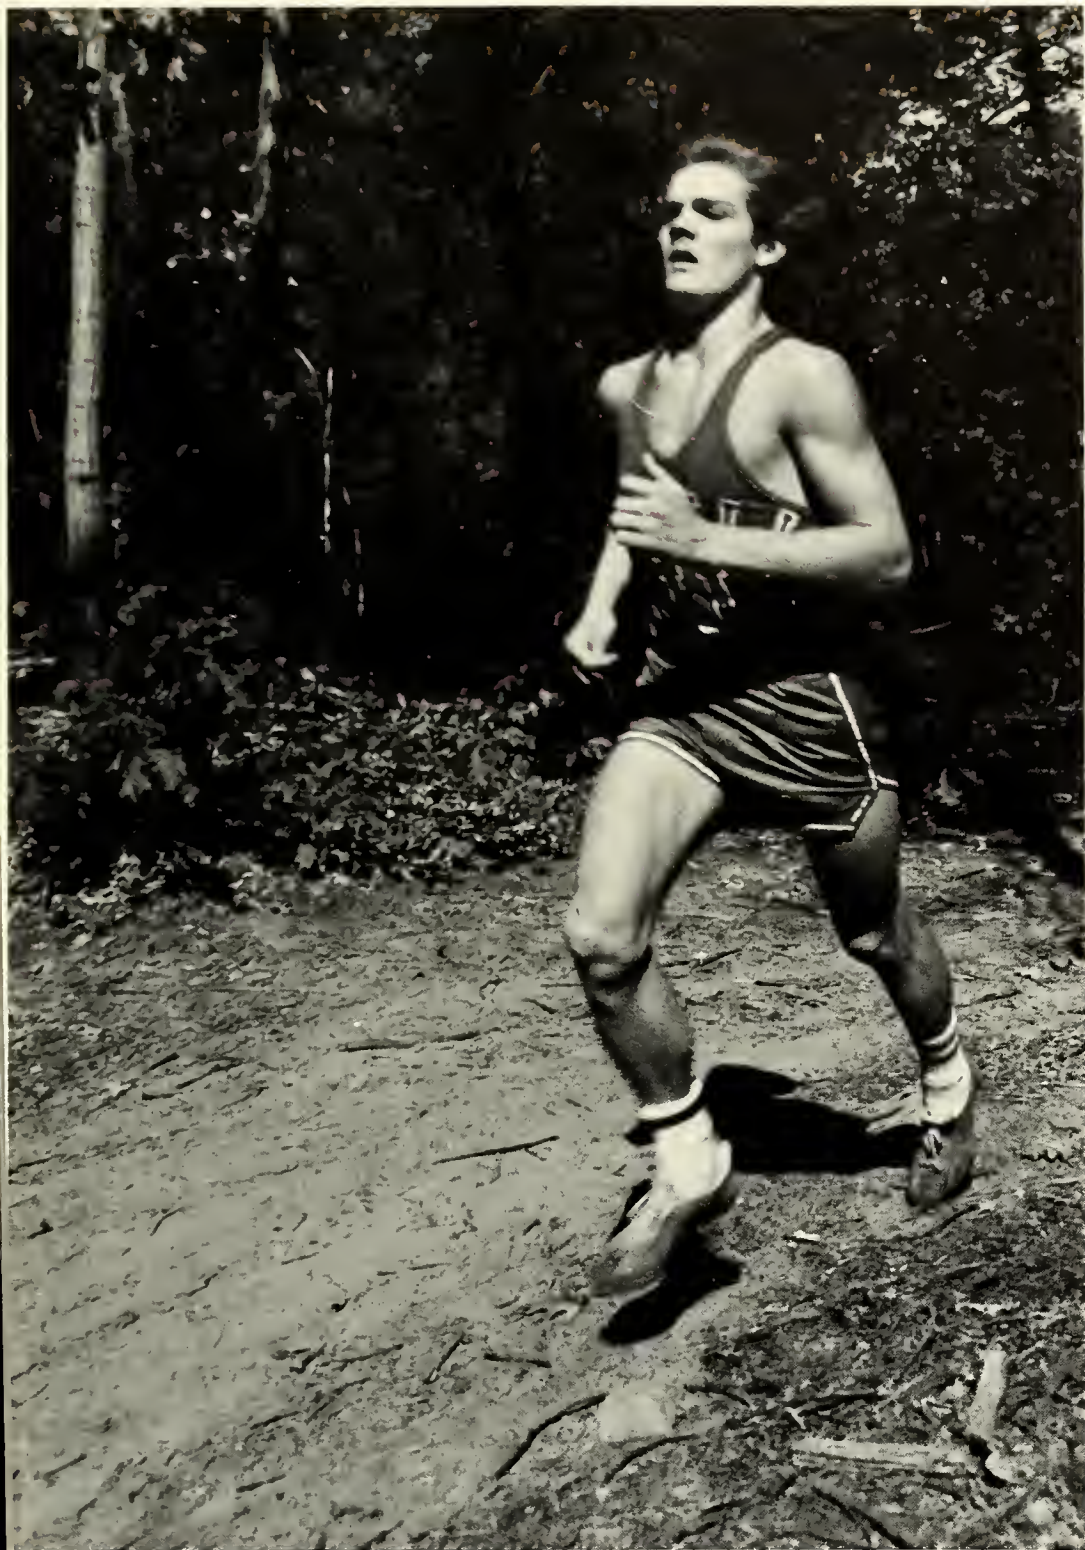

The B team was undefeated this year with wins over M.I.T., Boston College, and Andover Academy, as well as being winners of the Eastern League Championship.

Leading individuals include Brian Squires, running number one all year, Mike Hinton running 2nd for most of the year, and Phil Cantillon.

“Impressions”

What are yours?

Trapped inside this concrete jail
four years time, without bail

Society's game which I must play
There is no future, only today.

Sixteen years of wasted time,
Other's words flow through my mind.
Sheltered, yet trapped in an unreal space,
Only the blind dare enter this place.

Oh, my mind is filled with confusion,
Is the real world another allusion?

My feelings here, I'm sure are much like yours. The places I go, the people

I know are all part of my life here.

Loneliness, sorrow, happiness, ecstasy, and all dreams that are with me now will last in my mind as an impression.

Each year it has been a practice to ask the students for their recommendations for the honored position of Commencement Speaker. This year the students unanimously selected our Executive Vice President, Dr. Everett V. Olsen.

In 1946, Dr. Olsen began his distinguished career with Massachusetts State College, later to be named the University of Massachusetts.

In 1948 he was selected by the President of Lowell Textile Institute to join the administrative staff of the institute, and he has served in a variety of chief administrative positions at the institute and at the university ever since.

From 1948 to 1969, he held the position of Assistant to the President of Lowell Textile Institute, later named Lowell Technological Institute.

In 1964 the Board of Trustees awarded him the honorary degree of Doctor of Science in recognition of "his building of the Institute."

In 1969 he was appointed Executive Vice President of the Institute and was named Acting President in 1971, followed by appointment as President in 1972.

In 1975, when Lowell State College and Lowell Technological Institute merged, Dr. Olsen was named Acting President of the new University and served almost one year in that capacity before resuming his present position of Executive Vice President of the University of Lowell.

UNIVERSITY OF LOWELL
Lowell, Massachusetts

COMMENCEMENT ADDRESS

DR. EVERETT V. OLSEN
EXECUTIVE VICE PRESIDENT

May 26, 1979

Reverend Clergy, Members of the Board of Trustees, Mr. President, Members of the Faculty, Members of the Class of 1979, Distinguished Guests on the Platform, Parents, Husbands, Wives, Ladies and Gentlemen:

May I thank the members of the graduating class, this special class of 1979; for the honor which they have given to me by asking me to address you today. When Mr. Townsend, the Class President, asked me if I would speak, I was excited, I was thrilled, and tremendously pleased! It is a privilege that I had never expected, and I thank you, once again, Class of 1979, for asking me.

At the recent Student Government Association banquet, one of the young ladies in the Senior Class told my wife that she was pleased that I would be speaking today. Almost as an afterthought, she whispered to my wife, "Please tell him to be brief." So, I will try my best to do just that.

In the next few weeks, commencement exercises, similar to these, will be held almost everywhere, and the audiences will be addressed by political leaders and others in government, in industry and in education, many of whom will speak on all kinds of subjects such as the SALT negotiations, the peace treaty between Israel and Egypt, the economy, the shortage of oil, gas, and so on. You will be able to read all of those things — they are all important and just about required reading in this day and age. Today, I want to talk about things a little closer to home — things that are concerned with the University of Lowell and with you.

This is a class of firsts — some of which can never be duplicated. For example:

... This is the first class to have been involved in the merger, and you — the students — merged quicker than the faculty and staff of the two separate institutions;

... Yours is the first class to enroll as freshmen in the brand new University of Lowell in 1975;

... From that beginning, you became the first sophomore class, the first junior class, and now —

... While this is our fourth commencement, this is the first all-University class to graduate from the University of Lowell. My congratulations to each one of you — this is an accomplishment that cannot be duplicated.

In the brief span of four years as a university, we have had other nice things happen, too.

To begin with, what can I add to the accolades already given to your — our — hockey team — the NCAA Division 2 hockey champions of the United States.

We had a championship football team in 1977, and they were dangerously close to becoming champions again this year.

More recently, our baseball team was invited to participate in the NCAA championship competitions, and, while they did not win the title, nevertheless, this is another fine accomplishment for one of our teams. Last year they were number two in the ECAC — the Eastern College Athletic Conference.

What about former University of Lowell student Bob Hodge who won the San Francisco annual road race there last week where he outran 20,000 other runners? He's the same Bob Hodge who finished third in the Boston Marathon this year.

And — we have thirteen all-Americans from the University of Lowell — not bad!

University-wide, community-wide, there are other things which you've accomplished which are different from athletic contests but just as significant. For example, when Arthur Fiedler conducted the "1812 Overture" on the banks of the Merrimack River last fall, the concert orchestra which played for him was not the Boston Pops, it was you — our students and faculty — the University of Lowell Concert Band.

Our faculty and all of you have always been intimately involved in the musicales, the recitals, and the many high-quality intellectual pursuits such as conferences and learned discussions.

You've also been involved in solving problems concerned with minorities, women, children and those in need.

The engineering graduates who will be solving our complex problems with bridges, roads, manufacturing, transportation and energy in just a few months are a very great source of pride. Our graduating class of engineers represents about 1% of the nation's undergraduate engineers. That's quite an accomplishment when you look at the forty-nine states in the union and realize the number of colleges and universities, both public and private, throughout the land that are producing engineers.

The Continuing Education programs which had been going along very well for years have suddenly blossomed into a new kind of growth, and the enrollment has increased beyond everyone's expectations.

Academically, our students and you, our graduates, are showing everyone that you have the stuff. Our retention rate of students is far ahead of those in years gone by — and I mention this only because so many use this as some kind of measuring device.

Your grade point averages for this class look like this:

- . . . 68% of the class received 2.5 or better;
- . . . 35% of the class received 3.0 or better; and
- . . . Over 9% of the class was able to earn 3.5 or better.

That's excellent!

That shows that you have it where it counts!

In the city itself, we're moving in undreamed-of ways. The important factor, however, is that the city of Lowell is moving, and you've been right in the middle of it — you have been part of that, too. Could you ever expect a National Historic Park here in Lowell? — a Heritage State Park in Lowell? — a Computer Center on our campus, a brain center for the future? It is really a new city springing up from the old city; you and all of the faculty are involved in this — productive of some very real things.

Lowell has become a university city. Our faculty, our administration, our students are helping with the rebuilding, with the rebirth of our city. It is important that we keep up the momentum and the progress — we have a lead role to play.

Let me tell you about something that is happening on the political scene in Massachusetts which will effect not only you but the students for years to come. It is a study which could affect the lifeblood of the University of Lowell for years to come, and it could have a bearing on those other items I've just mentioned. I'd like you to know about it.

First, though, let me give you a brief review of higher education in Massachusetts — it goes quite a way back. For example, Harvard University was the first private university to be established — here in Massachusetts — back in 1636, and its primary mission then was to train men for careers in the church and in teaching. Some 200 years later, the Land Grant Act was passed by the United States Congress giving birth to some of our leading state universities, but the Land Grant Act colleges were established to give education to the so-called "laboring classes" with subjects in such fields as agriculture, military arts and mechanics, those things called engineering technology today.

Here in Massachusetts, the Land Grant College is the University of Massachusetts which in its earlier days, as recent as 1946, served as the Massachusetts State College at Amherst specializing in agriculture subjects. Would you believe that until 1946 we had an agricultural state college in Amherst and that we've had a state university by the specific name in this commonwealth for only thirty-three years!

Well, here in Lowell, we have our university, and, as you know, it sprang from the combination of Lowell State College and Lowell Technological Institute. Lowell State was involved from the early 1890's in teacher training — that was the primary activity. Lowell Tech was in textile manufacturing, processing of textile fibers, fabrics, service to the industry which formed the backbone of the economy here in Lowell in those days. This went along for fifty years or more, and suddenly each of the institutions expanded and grew.

You probably have no idea how much these two campuses have changed in the time period since 1945 and 1946 — try to envisage a south campus with exactly one building on it — Coburn Hall; or the north campus with a quadrangle of four buildings and nothing else. The VFW Highway wasn't there, and neither campus had one square foot of finished hottopped parking area.

Would you believe that in 1946 there wasn't one single state-supported Community College to be found anywhere in Massachusetts? But then things began to change, and they changed rapidly.

The pressure of veterans returning from the second world war demanded that new educational programs be established, and they were. Things were expanded remarkably in the state and on both of our separate campuses until the 1960's. Then, a comprehensive study of education in Massachusetts took place. There is no question that it was needed. We needed direction, coordination and a definition of purpose.

In this 1960 comprehensive study, a single Commissioner of Education was replaced by a Board of Higher Education. Also, five major segments of publicly-supported higher education were established. The University of Lowell is one of those five segments.

One of the matters at issue then was degree-granting power. There was then, and — as a result of our winning a tough scrap — there are still two state-supported universities qualified to grant degree through the Ph.D. level — one of them is the University of Massachusetts, and the other one is the University of Lowell. That puts us in the big league as far as I'm concerned.

Today the University of Lowell, besides being the newest, is the fastest growing, publicly-supported university in the Commonwealth of Massachusetts.

The new study which I mentioned has been approved by the Legislature and signed by His Excellency, Governor Edward J. King. The new study was proposed and supported by the principal architects of the original study that was made fifteen years ago. As with the former study, one of the first and foremost thoughts was to put everything together under one big mammoth university and "the problems would be over." I, for one, would not like to see this happen.

The University of Lowell's official position with respect to the study will depend upon the recommendations of the president and the approval of the board of trustees. Once that policy decision is reached, it is then up to us to give support to it from all quarters of the university. It is fair to say, however, that change is coming, and there are some good reasons for it.

Hopefully, the new study will be based on what's best for us academically. My observations — after over thirty years in this system — are directed toward management and leadership in higher education — not here at the university — but the hierarchy — the super structure of education — in Boston.

Every few years our whole structure has been disrupted, and new or changed systems of control and management have been tried. Most of them have lasted only a short time, and then they've been changed again.

We've been at it long enough now to know what to do and how to do it. The proper application of academic brain power to the creation of an educational system that will work is what we seem to need.

The students of the University of Lowell and the members of the University of Lowell Alumni Association have already survived one major merger. Another one of the size and the impact of the last one would probably be destructive of the student morale and enthusiasm, as well as of the vitality and the strength of our University of Lowell Alumni Association.

Therefore, to help to improve your university, I urge you to join the Alumni Association — it's your organization. As graduates you're the only ones eligible to be members of it. Not only do I urge you to join the Association, but I urge you then to become an active member of the Alumni — speak as a member of a united group, speak with strength and conviction, help your university to continue to become one of the best to be found anywhere.

You are now graduating and joining a rather special group — you're professionals — ready to assume your role in society. Your talent, coupled with all of the resources and materials available for problem solving, makes your future exceptionally bright.

President Crawford Greenewalt of the Dupont Company said:

"An education is not a single entity, developed in a few semesters of study and delivered with the diploma. It is a never-ending process built up over the years of exposure and experience. Many of the interests which broaden and enrich our lives and careers are developed long after we have left school."

You join those honored here today, with honorary degrees from this university, who have devoted their lives to helping people, to solving people problems and making communities better for all of us. We need you, with your professional skills, to serve on committees, to be active community leaders, and we need you to speak out on important issues — at all levels of government — especially in those areas in which you have been specially trained.

Before I conclude, let me tell you one brief story that I heard many years ago which impressed me considerably. I think that you might find something valuable and useful in the message it contains:

Centuries ago, in biblical times, the people in a community decided that they would build a temple, a beautiful temple, which would be a monument for all time for the people of this community, expressing their pride and their faith in one another. The people of the community called upon their artisans, their craftsmen, to design a beautiful temple with spires, magnificent windows, arches, and so on, and when it was begun, all of the workmen brought tools and equipment with them to do the work that was needed.

The measuring devices in those days were rather crude — they were wooden sticks or standards as they were called. They were of uniform lengths with notches and marks for varying purposes. Each trade had its own special standard, its own wooden measuring device.

Not all was peaceful in the little community, however. There were those who would tear down, who would destroy, who would not want the temple — this monument to reflect the feelings of the community, and they conspired together to do something about it.

It was agreed among these conspirators that they would select a person to go to the superintendent's construction office or shack every few days after dark and trim a little off the wooden standards — just a little bit so that it wouldn't show the next morning — it wouldn't be noticed. They were sure that in doing this the temple would be crooked, tilted, that the spires and the windows and arches, when put in place, would lean one way or the other, that the temple would be a disgrace to the community. The work proceeded, and, every few days after dark, one of the critics made his way to the workshack and removed just a little bit from the standards.

Finally, the temple was completed, and it was a beautiful temple. Everything was square, everything was straight, level, true and the measurements were perfect. One of the dissidents could stand the pressure no longer, and he found his way surreptitiously to the office of the superintendent of construction and said, "There are some among us who have conspired, and they have been in your office every few days and have trimmed just a little bit from your standards, from your measurement devices which you use — it was hoped that the temple would not be finished properly."

"Oh," said the superintendent, "that didn't bother us. You see, every day we checked our standards and there's our temple — straight, square, level, beautiful."

You will probably not be involved in building a temple, but the lifestyle that you build for yourself and for your loved ones deserves your best effort — your best standards.

When I started out, I complimented you on the records and the accomplishments that you have established. I want to extend to you my congratulations and sincerest best wishes on everything that you undertake.

Please realize that whatever reputation for excellence the University of Lowell enjoys in the years ahead will be indicative of those things which you do to reflect credit upon us. We have a magnificent faculty and staff, we have a magnificent student body, but in the business world we will be judged in the future by your accomplishments — our graduates — and your actions in your day-to-day endeavors.

Take a little time going through this life to enjoy things, to enjoy those people who mean the most to you and do all that you possibly can to reflect credit on yourself and on them.

Don't forget to say "thank you" to your parents and to your loved ones who have made it possible for you to come to the University of Lowell. You're a wonderful class and I congratulate every one of you. GOOD LUCK!

Tau Kappa Epsilon

Delta Kappa Phi

Delta Kappa Phi Fraternity was founded in 1899 at the Philadelphia College of Textiles and Science. Since its modest beginning, DK has grown to a small national social fraternity which includes schools of engineering, science, and liberal arts. At U. Lowell, Beta Chapter takes full advantage of the relative independence and mutual cooperation of a small national.

In the community DK has been active in visits to old age homes, along with activities coordinated for the Head Start program and the Big Brother Assoc. of Lowell. Our involvement in fund raising drives to raise money for UNICEF and other worthy causes and in the blood drives that were held on campus has given us a great deal of personal satisfaction.

The social aspect of the Fraternity is not to be denied, with its very unique and entertaining parties and affairs being highlighted by IFSC Weekend, Halloween, Christmas, and New Year's parties, Yamho and the Fraternity Semi-Formal. House improvements, athletic endeavors and the acquisition of the once long held Choral Trophy that was cinched by our classic version of "Swing Low Sweet Chariot" has made '79 in retrospect, a rewarding and memorable experience for all.

A sister is a girl who'll stand up for you, stand with you, and stand in place of you. She'll go out on a limb, out to eat, and out of her way for you. She'll help you with your homework, help you type your paper, and help you hang posters. She'll borrow your records, your money, and your shoes. She'll teach you how to dance, how to sing, how to laugh, and how to love. She'll listen to your life and sympathize, listen to your jokes and laugh. She'll listen. She knows when to be silent, and when to speak. She'll sometimes need a ride to the bank, a place to sleep, or a shoulder to cry on. She'll be solemn and rowdy, sophisticated and crude. She's got the heart of a lion, the patience of a saint, the soul of an angel, and the spitfire of a devil. She's in your class, and at your party. She's in your life. She's a friend you can count on. Dear Alpha Sigma Tau girl, that sister is you.

Alpha Omega

Alpha Omega was founded in 1968. At first it was just a group of girls who could see the need for an organization of women on Lowell State's campus. These first sisters worked hard to make Alpha Omega a sisterhood to be proud of. They expanded their friendships not only to include one another but also the community. The sisters of Alpha Omega from the very beginning have worked together for academic, service, athletic, and social achievements at the college and in the community. This is a tradition which we are proud to uphold.

In 1902, Omicron Pi became a reality. Now the year is 1979. In those seventy-seven years, a sincerity and enthusiasm found at O Pi has been developed through the efforts of both the active brothers and the alumni. It is not only displayed by our brotherhood, but by our athletic teams who through their accomplishments continue the O Pi tradition.

As the school year began, things began to happen at 31 Waverly Ave., starting with the formal invitation of six new brothers. The first big party of the year was our annual Shea Stadium Party. It was also our beginning of rushing season. Things continued with our annual Collisium, Fireman's Ball and No-Name parties. During the Christmas break, we added eight new brothers to our house, which will give us more strength in the coming year.

May brought the biggest weekend of the year, Formal Weekend: new officers and memories that will never be forgotten. Omicron Pi is a combination of struggles, problems, and defeats that always turn to victories.

American Institute of Chemical Engineers

The purpose of the American Institute of Chemical Engineers is to promote interest and knowledge in chemical engineering. This year's activities included: Annual AIChE Conference in Miami; plant trips to Stauffer Chemical,

Mobil Chemical, Polaroid Corp., and Artisan Industries; Boston Section AIChE Meeting; Student AIChE Conference at University of Rhode Island; Annual Banquet ($8500 in scholarships); lecturers on employment in the chemical industry; pizza-and beer night; Annual Picnic; and the Open House.

This wide range of activities helped to bridge the gap between classroom and industry.

American Chemical Society

The Student Affiliate of the American Chemical Society at the University of Lowell is an organization of Chemistry and Chemical Engineering majors who are expanding their interest in chemistry from a non-academic point of view. Activities include guest speakers, field trips to industrial labs, regional and national ACS meetings, biannual banquets as well as recreational activities such as student versus faculty softball and volleyball games. These activities allow the members to observe the chemist's world in a realistic perspective.

American Nuclear Society

It was another busy year for the University of Lowell Student Chapter of the American Nuclear Society. The ANS Student Chapter made significant showings at the winter meeting of the National ANS in Washington D.C. and the spring student meeting of the ANS at the University of Maryland. The ANS Student Chapter was also a co-sponsor of the first National Conference on Energy Advocacy held in Washington D.C. in February. Other big events included: tours of Brookhaven National Laboratory and Shoreham Nuclear Power Station on Long Island, a tour of the Bitter National Magnet Laboratory in Cambridge, a tour of the New London, Connecticut Naval Submarine Base, and the usual speakers, pizza parties, hamburger days, Christmas party, and spring picnic.

The purpose of the ANS is "the advancement of science and engineering related to the atomic nucleus and of allied sciences and arts." This goal is attained through promotion of professional development of its members and the development of Nuclear Engineering at the University of Lowell.

Mass Voice of Energy

The Massachusetts Voice of Energy (MVOE) Student Chapter is a new organization which is an outgrowth of the statewide MVOE, a grassroots pro-energy organization with over 1000 members. The positions and objectives of MVOE include support of increased commitment to all domestic energy sources and reduction of dependence on foreign oil.

Even though it was only started this year, the MVOE Student Chapter has been quite active. The MVOE Student Chapter was a co-sponsor of the first National Conference on Energy Advocacy held in Washington D.C. in February. Other activities included: a tour of Seabrook Nuclear Power Station, two informative Energy Forums, various energy speakers, writing a well read series of energy articles in the Connector, and social events.

Biology Club

The purpose of the Biology Club is to further intellectual and professional interests in the Biological Sciences at the University of Lowell. This is partially achieved by periodic invitations to faculty members from other universities to speak to us on their research. Another function of the club is to set up a free tutoring program each semester.

In addition, the Biology Club sponsors various events such as ski trips, field trips, and parties as well as participating in intramural athletics.

The Wireless Society is a licensed amateur radio station. Membership is open to all students at the Univ. Of Lowell. Contrary to common belief our club is not curriculum bounded. Communicating with people from all walks of life in our neighborhood, or the world at large, transcends job skills or educational development.

To become an amateur operator one must be licensed by the F.C.C. The club actively counsels non-licensed members on how to pass the basic entry-grade exam and get on the air.

The Photography Club's purpose is to stimulate interest in photography — not only in picture taking but also in developing and printing photographs. Members are able to gain knowledge by attending weekly meetings during which people display their work and ask questions. The club maintains both a fully equipped darkroom and a photography office where all the latest photo journals are available to students. A special thanks to Douglas Haydock who for two and a half years as President worked hard in obtaining among other things a darkroom and office for the club.

After a period of inactivity, we were recognized this year by the student government as an official club of the University of Lowell. The purpose of the club is to provide certified divers an opportunity to dive, and to interest non-divers in the sport. Although we are only a few months old we have already had two hot-dog days, been diving in the chilly spring waters of the Atlantic, and have the beginnings of an

Right now a dark cloud hovers above the city. Countless hours were spent in the production of this book — this is the last page to be done. But it is done. We, the '79 staff, are filled with a sense of pride and achievement. For so long, Sojourn '79 was only an idea — now it is finally a reality. Two new freshmen, here for orientation, just came by exploring — I wonder how things will go next year — who will do what we've done — as you read this, consider getting involved in some aspect of school activities — More people are always needed and appreciated. The cloud has disappeared; the weather is hot, muggy. I wish to thank the following people who helped to make this job a little easier for us: Forbes Madzongwe, Guy Garon, Linda Jo Miller, Connie Provencher, Bob Bates, Dean James Donohoe, Dr. Barbara Miliaras, Leo Panas and Martha Mayo (U Lowell Special Collections), and all of our Parents.
